Indiana Republicans Anxious To Go to St. Louis Uninstructed.

THE FIGHT OF THE HARRISON FACTION

McKinley Supporters Working Desperately To Capture the State Convention Which Meets To-morrow—A Hot Fight Is Expected.

Indianapolis, May 6.—Nearly all the republican leaders of the state have arrived here to attend the state convention which meets in Tomlinson hall to-morrow morning. The gathering promises to be one of the most interesting on record. The principal features will be the fight on instructions between the McKinley and the Harrison factions, the effort to induce Gen. Harrison to address the convention, which is being bitterly opposed by the McKinleyites, the nomination of a state ticket, and the attempt of Chas. Fairbanks to show his strength by having himself chosen as a delegate-at-large to the St. Louis convention. Fairbanks is a senatorial candidate, and if he can land the St. Louis honor it may be taken as an indication that he can also claim the senatorship.

Don't Want To Be Tagged.

Up to to-day it looked as though the McKinley faction had a sure thing in the matter of instructions, but as the outside delegates arrive the phase of the struggle is being changed, as they are found to be almost to a unit against "tagging" the Indiana delegation. The prospect of the appearance of Gen. Harrison at the convention has sent a thrill of terror into the McKinley ranks. They fear that such a thing will stampede the delegates and ruin their chances of getting instructions for their champion. Gen Harrison has been invited to speak, but he has not yet replied to the invitation. The general belief is that, under the circumstances, and knowing, as he does, the effect that his appearance in the convention hall might have, he will decline to accept the honor. In fact, he is said to have intimated his determination to a few friends, but he will be urged to appear nevertheless.

Sound Money Platform.

Next in importance is the election of a state ticket. Never before in the history of the state has there been such a grist of candidates for the offices to be filled. For governor there are thirteen candidates, all of whom seem to have a fair following, with Major Doxey of Anderson slightly in the lead, if his claims may be relied upon. It is impossible to forecast the result of a single nomination with certainty, and the prospects are that the convention will be in session for two days, balloting most of the time. The platform will be short, and although there has recently been a show made on the part of the free silver advocates, it can be safely said that the convention will declare for sound money, and send sound money delegates to St. Louis.

Afraid of Harrison.

On all sides is heard talk as to the probability of Gen. Harrison's name being sprung at St. Louis. It is claimed that an emergency might arise which would warrant the use of his name, despite his distinct and expressed wishes to the contrary, and this is said to be one reason why the anti-McKinley men will fight to the death rather than permit the Indiana delegation to be sent to St. Louis with instructions for the Ohio man. All in all, the prospect for the hottest kind of a struggle is very flattering.

HIS SKULL FRACTURED.

A New Jersey Woman Beats Her Husband with a Stove Shaker.

Belvidere, N. J., May 6.—Mrs Wm. H. Dickey of Phillipsburg was lodged in the jail here last night to await the result of her assault upon her husband at their home yesterday morning. Dickey has been for many years street commissioner of Phillipsburg, and is a well known politician. He and his wife became involved in a quarrel early in the morning, when she assaulted him with a stove shaker. Dickey lies in the Easton hospital with a fractured skull, and it is thought that he will die.

SEVEN YEARS FOR FOSTER.

Concord's Embezzling Tax Collector Sentenced to State Prison.

Concord, N. H., May 6.—Albert I. Foster, Concord's embezzling ex-tax collector, pleaded nolo conteniere on two indictments in the supreme court yesterday afternoon, and was sentenced by Judge Chase to five years in prison on one indictment and two years on the other, the latter to begin at the expiration of the former sentence. Foster took his sentence coolly, and was conveyed to prison from the court room without delay.

Death of an Ocean Captain.

New York, May 6.—The International Navigation company has received a cable dispatch stating that Capt. Randolph C. Weyes of the Red Star line died in Antwerp Monday night of rheumatic gout. The Westernland never met with a mishap while under the command of Capt. Weyer. The latter was an American citizen, though born in Germany.

DEATH OF COL. NORTH.

Brief Sketch of the Career of the Late Nitrate King.

London, May 6.—Col. John T. North, the nitrate king, who was stricken with a fainting fit yesterday in his office and expired last evening, was born in Lancashire fifty-one years ago. He was a boilermaker by trade, and thirty years ago went to Chili. He had genius for mechanics. From Chili he went to Peru, when the nitrate business was in its infancy. He got control of the water beds, necessary for extracting the valuable fertilizer, and got options on railways and canals, and before he knew it he was a millionaire. When he went to England and began to spend his income, which increased enormously, he became the most talked about person. He owned the finest horses and the most gorgeous houses in all England, outside of the royal palaces. He was most fond of display, and his gorgeous, if not great, fuctions were talked of all over Great Britain. Once he gave a fancy dress ball at the hotel Metropole, in London, at which he engaged not only the hall and reception rooms, but a hundred chambers beside. The best known people in the city fought for invitations. Earls, baronets and members of parliament struggled for cards and places. It was a great success. He was a character, and as lavish in his princely prodigality as ever was a generous sultan. He ran for parliament at the last election, but was defeated. Col. North was reputed to be worth $100,000,000 aside from his income, which is conservatively estimated at $1,000,000 a year. He is said to have been one of the six richest men in the world. Col. North for a long time had been a prominent figure on the London stock market, and was concerned in many very heavy deals. His boldness and shrewdness made him an object of lively interest to all other big operators.

ORDERED TO ASIATIC STATION.

Lieut.-Commander Delano, U. S. N., To Relieve Commander Sturdy, Suspended.

Boston, May 6.—Lieut.-Commander Francis H. Delano, U. S. N., executive officer of the receiving ship Wabash at the navy yard, has received orders from the navy department detaching him from his present post and ordering him to proceed to the Asiatic station and report for duty as the executive officer of the flagship Olympia, to relieve Lieut.-Commander E. W. Sturdy, who has been tried by a general court-martial, sentenced to two years' suspension and a loss of ten months in his grade, detached from the ship and ordered to return home. Lieut. Delano will proceed at once to San Francisco and take the next steamer for Yokohama, where, if there is no superior officer to report to and give him further orders, he will practically report to himself and join the Olympia at the first opportunity.

TEMPORARILY ENJOINED.

K. of L. National Executive Board Restrained from Trying Glassworkers.

Pittsburg, May 6.—Judge White has issued a restraining order, directed to the national executive committee of the Knights of Labor, prohibiting them from proceeding with the trial of thirty-seven defendants, members of the Glassworkers' assembly, against whom charges were preferred by Simon Burns, president of the assembly. A hearing on the application for a permanent injunction was fixed for Thursday next. Allegations are made that Burns and the Knights of Labor officers are conspiring to divert the funds of the order from their legitimate purposes.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Weather Bureau's Weekly Bulletin for Eastern States.

Washington, May 6.—The weekly telegraphic bulletins received by the weather bureau from the different states as to the progress of the crops as to-day made public are in part as follows: New England—Sharp frosts, but no serious damage; only a trace of rain fall; fruit buds showing well. New York—Scarcely any rain; winter wheat is suffering; many report peaches killed. New Jersey—Wonderfully improved condition of all crops; warm rain needed. Pennsylvania—Wheat and rye improving, but many fields in bad condition; abundant fruit blooms.

KILLED HER UNCLE.

12-Year-Old Minnie Swanger Placed in Custody of Children's Aid Society.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., May 6.—The Blair county court has placed Minnie Swanger, Altoona's 12-year-old murderer, in the care and custody of the Children's Aid society of western Pennsylvania. The child poisoned her uncle, William McGregor, for the purpose of securing life insurance money. She will be taken to Morganza, below Pittsburg.

Celebration at Princeton College.

Princeton, N. J., May 6.—A semi-centennial jubilee in honor of president William Henry Green's connection with Princeton theological seminary was held here yesterday, in connection with the eighty-fourth commencement of that institution. The alumni of the seminary and representatives of similar institutions throughout the country were present to honor Dr. Green with their expressions of esteem.

IN DEEP DISGRACE

Transvaal Disclosures Have Cast a Shadow on England's Name.

SO SAYS SIR WILLIAM HARCOURT

The Grave Revelations Must Be Discussed by Parliament, He Says, and Measures Taken To Clear the Nation's Reputation.

London, May 6.—Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, leader of the opposition in the house of commons, spoke at a meeting last night of the National Liberal club. In the course of his speech he said that the state of affairs in South Africa was deplorable. The recent grave and momentus revelations must be discussed by parliament in order to get at the bottom of the transactions which had cast a dark shadow on England's name. The liberals, he added, would support the government if, as he believed it would, take measures to clear the nation's reputation from complicity in the Transvaal business, which had brought it into deep disgrace. If the government and nation failed in their duty they would deserve the reproaches of unfriendly critics abroad.

Venezuela Matter.

Sir William further said that a great majority of the people in the United States and Great Britain were eager for an early and peaceful settlement of the Venezuela question. He confessed that he was impatient that a settlement was so long delayed. It was to settle such questions that diplomacy existed. No personal pride or diplomatic obstincy should be allowed to prevent a settlement. (Cheers.)

Rhodes in Chamberlain's Hands.

London, May 6.—The Standard will to-day say that Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, has received a message from Cecil Rhodes in which the latter states that he places himself unreservedly in Mr. Chamberlain's hands. Mr. Rhodes offers to resign his membership in the privy council, to retire from the directorship of the British South Africa company, and to return to England, if Mr. Chamberlain advises him to do so. It is understood that the matter was discussed by the cabinet yesterday, and it is expected that Mr. Chamberlain will announce the decision arrived at to the house of commons this afternoon.

Offered To Aid a Revolutionary Movement.

Paris, May 6.—The Pretoria correspondent of the Temps reaffirms that Sir Henry Brougham Loch, now Lord Loch of Drylaw, when governor of Cape Colony and British high commissioner in South Africa, offered to aid a revolutionary movement in the Transvaal, and this in face of Lord Loch's denial of the original report.

GALA DAY AT NEW LONDON.

The City Celebrating the 250th Anniversary of Its Founding.

New London, Conn., May 6.—This city is to-day celebrating the 250th anniversary of its founding by John Winthrop. The streets are thronged with residents and visitors and the stores and houses are profusely decorated. The celebration began last night at the armory on Washington and Colt streets, where literary exercises were held, the largest audience ever in the building assembling to listen to the speeches of well-known orators and the music of the voices of 400 school girls, led by the Third Regiment band, C. N. G. The formal exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. John R. Stubbert, pastor of the Huntington street Baptist church. Mayor Johnson followed in an address of welcome. The address of the evening was delivered by Walter Leonard on "The Founding of the Town." The address was historical in character and traced the growth of the town from its foundation to the present day. George Parsons Lathrop, LL. D., whose home is in this city, read a poem written for the occasion, which was greeted with applause. Short speeches were made by Thomas M. Waller and Congressman Russell. To-day a cornerstone for a monument to perpetuate the memory of Winthrop will be laid.

THE HILDRETH CASE.

Defense in the Boy Train Wreckers' Trial Opened This Morning.

Rome, N. Y., May 6.—D. F. Searle, the associate counsel for Hildreth, the boy train wrecker, began the opening for the defense this morning. He said that the defense would probably occupy a couple of days. Nothing can be learned from the defendant's counsel as to whether Hildreth would be placed on the stand. Hildreth was asked and said he did not know. Hildreth and the other two boys were weighed on Monday night by the sheriff by order of the court. Hildreth weighed 115 pounds, Plato 124, and Hibbard 133. During yesterday afternoon the widow of Engineer Hager, who was killed in the smash-up, and her son Frank were present at the trial.

Appointed State Prison Director.

Hartford, May 6.—Gov. Coffin has appointed Edward Crosbie of this city a member of the board of state prison directors, in place of Marvin H. Santord of Simsoury, resigned. The appointment holds until the next general assembly meets.

TO FORCE A PROTEST

The Senate To-day Considering the Competitor Affair.

WANT THE PRESIDENT TO ACT

Believe He Should Intercede To Save the Lives of the Captured Crew—The House Insists on Four New Battleships.

Washington, May 6.—One important matter before the senate to-day and which promises to call forth considerable discussion is the resolution offered yesterday afternoon by Senator Call, dem., Fla., requesting the president to protest against the execution of United States citizens captured on board the schooner Competitor by a Spanish cruiser and to request and demand of the government of Spain that they shall not be subjected to cruel treatment, but be held only as prisoners of war. The resolution was on the point of being declared by the vice-president agreed to by unanimous consent when Senator Wolcott, rep., Col., interposed with the remark that if the facts were as stated by Senator Call, that the vessel was merely carrying war material, it was the manifest duty of the president to interfere and it was rather unusual to request the president to do his duty. He should like to see how it looked in print. He therefore objected, and the resolution went over until to-day.

House of Representatives.

The battle over the naval appropriation bill was fought in the house, and there was a more vigorous opposition to the provision authorizing the construction of four battleships than was made when the bill was originally under consideration when the fight was between four and six ships. But the effort to concur in the senate amendment reducing the number from four to two was defeated—yeas, 81; nays, 141. The fight was not at all partisan. Mr. Sayers, dem., Tex., made the motion to concur, and was ably supported by Mr. Cannon, rep., Ill., chairman of the committee on appropriations, who pointed out that with only two battleships provided for, the revenues of the government for four years of the next administration, which he said would be that of a republican president, would be mortgaged by the appropriation bills of this session to the extent of $25,000,000 a year. Mr. Boutelle, rep., Me., chairman of the committee on naval affairs, stoutly maintained the desirability and propriety of constructing four battleships, and he was assisted in the argument by Mr. Cummings, dem., N. Y. The latter arraigned the senate for its action upon appropriation and revenue bills in the last congress, asserting that it had virtually violated the provisions of the constitution in respect to the former, and, as to the latter, had compelled the house to agree to a tariff bill full of blunders, from which the country had ever since been suffering. The request of the senate for a conference on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to after the vote on Mr. Sayers' motion.

TILLMAN WILL DOMINATE.

And the South Carolina Democratic Convention Will Be for Free Silver.

Columbia, S. C., May 6.—Comparatively full reports from the democratic county conventions held yesterday indicate that the state convention to be held here on the 20th inst. will be almost unanimous for free silver and will be dominated by Senator Tillman. It is interesting to note that so far as heard from not a single convention has indorsed Senator Tillman for a place on the national ticket. This is taken as an indication that his friends think that his best chance is in another party.

New York State Democratic Convention.

New York, May 6.—Chairman John W. Hinckley has called the democratic state committee to meet at the Hoffman house on Friday, May 15, to fix the time and place for holding the state convention to elect four delegates-at-large to the democratic national convention. It is expected that the convention will be called to meet in Saratoga in the last week in June.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

Operations in the Field as Reported by Spanish Officials.

Havana, May 6.—Heavy firing has been heard near Cabanas, but no details of any fighting at that place have been received. Col. Tort reports that his command had an engagement with the rebels under Agramonte near San Nicolas, province of Havana. The rebels lost seven killed. The troops lost a surgeon and one private wounded. Parties of rebels attacked the towns of Ranohuelo, Esperanza and Tega Alta. Col. Delgado reports that he has captured a rebel camp near Rodas, in the Cienfuegos district. Ten rebels were killed and one captured. The troops had only one killed. Insurgents have destroyed with dynamite the tracks, bridges and culverts of the railway between Mantanzas and Havana. Fires are reported from different sections of the island. The buildings, etc., on many farms and estates, especially near Quivican, province of Havana, have been destroyed. The trial of the men who were captured on the schooner Competitor, which was landing a filibustering expedition when seized by a Spanish warship, is believed to have resulted in the acquittal of two of the prisoners. The others have been sentenced to be shot. The prisoners are still "incomunicado."

SIX BODIES RECOVERED.

Ten Others Believed To Be Under the Ruins of Cincinnati's Wrecked Building.

Cincinnati, May 6.—Six dead bodies have so far been removed from the wrecked building at 432-434 Walnut street, which was the scene of Monday night's terrific gasoline explosion. The dangerous condition of the adjacent walls caused the building inspector to call a halt to further operations until they can be pulled down. Ten more bodies are still believed to be under the ruins.

Could Not Stand Disgrace.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 6.—Julius Fahy, editor of a Hungarian paper at Nanticoke and also the agent of several steamship companies, committed suicide last evening by taking poison. He was arrested Monday night on the charge of embezzlement. This was very humiliating to him and he told a friend that he would rather die than stand such a disgrace. He was well educated, being a master of eight languages.

TO DIE TO-MORROW

Work of Erecting the Scaffold for Holmes Begun.

HAS NOT YET MADE HIS WILL

Said That He Will Provide for Mrs. Pitezel — He Appeals to Her To Endeavor To Secure a Respite for Him.

Philadelphia, May 6.—H. H. Holmes was last night transferred from the cell in the county prison that he had occupied since the verdict of guilty was rendered against him for murdering Benjamin F. Pitezel to a newly fitted up section that affords him more light and better ventilation. The doomed man is now confined in a cell that is only a few yards from the gallows, but the cell is so situated that the scaffold is removed from his vision. He can, however, hear the moving of timbers and the rapping of hammers upon the apparatus that is being constructed for his end to-morrow. The changing of the cell was done simply to facilitate the officers of the hanging. As now placed Holmes will be led out of a cell directly in the rear of the scaffold and he will not have the ordeal of marching down a flight of stairs with the gallows constantly in his view.

Mrs. Pitezel Provided For.

Lawyer Rotan, who defended Holmes, stated to-day that he had not yet drafted Holmes' will, because the condemned man so frequently makes changes in the document. "Mrs. Pitezel has been given some money," said Mr. Rotan, "and I have no doubt that she will be amply provided for. She may have some difficulty, though, in collecting from estates that are tangled up in litigation and mortgages." When Lawyer Fahy, the attorney for Mrs. Pitezel, was subsequently seen he said: "Mrs. Pitezel is preparing to return home to her people at Calva, Ill., and I expect that she will leave before the execution." "It is said that she has already received some money from Holmes. Was that a part of the promised restitution of the insurance money?" was asked. "Mrs. Pitezel did receive some money from Holmes," answered Lawyer Fahy with a tinge of sarcasm. "She received just thirty dollars, and that is about one-tenth of what her traveling expenses and the cost of her board here amounts to."

Appeals to His Victims' Wife and Mother.

Attorney Fahy has made public a letter that Holmes wrote to him on May 1, as attorney for Mrs. Pitezel, in which the condemned man requested Mrs. Pitezel to ask Gov. Hastings for a reprieve. Mr. Fahy stated that his client could not conscientiously go before the governor on such a mission, and if she did it would not avail. In the letter Holmes says: "On account of being refused a short reprieve, I cannot accomplish all I had hoped to in money matters without her aid. Coroner Castor's visit here has accomplished all I desired to do in that direction. But there is no necessity of losing the Chicago property unless she so wills it. I therefore make the following proposition, assuming that the governor will heed a request from Mrs. Pitezel when he knows that she and other helpless ones, and not I, are to profit by it. You will by this time know that since November I have not made an effort to save my life, but have bent all my energies to arranging other matters for a stay of five weeks, which will carry me over to foreclosure proceedings and allow me ample time to fully settle up affairs.

Says He Is Unfit To Die.

"I will give to Mrs. Pitezel a house and lot clear of all encumbrances, accompanied by a lease from a tenant paying $10 per month to May 1, 1897, and, after valuing the house and lot at only what it has been encumbered for will pay to her in cash sufficient to make a total of $2,000, no part of which shall be taken from the one-third set aside for her on April 18. The encumbrance to which I refer I can clear by an exchange with Chicago parties and thus save paying out the money. Besides this gain to Mrs. Pitezel she will still have one-third of what we can realize from the block at Sixty-third street, and I am specially anxious to sell this in a way we have planned as it allows me to pay off every dollar I owe in Chicago. I would also beg Mrs. Pitezel to remember that while she may think me unfit to live I am certainly unfit to die, and in return for what I can do for her, should like an opportunity to read and otherwise try and prepare myself for death."

Education Bill in the Commons.

London, May 6.—In the house of commons last night Sir John E. Gorst, vice-president of the committee of council, moved the second reading of the education bill, which applies to England and Wales. The bill proposes to establish an educational department in every county and borough, to be controlled by the county councils, these departments to administer the parliamentary grants.

OF FRAGILE BEAUTY.

Our Grandmothers Were Not All We Have Been Told.

The young woman of the present generation who ventures to have a headache or "nerves" is immediately confronted by indignant critics with her grandmother. If the grandmother is living the fact of her continued existence is made to tell, and if she sleeps with her fathers her grandchild is confronted with her ghost, the ghost is endowed with as many excellencies as those with whom Betsy Trotwood endowed the niece who never was born. And as poor David Copperfield was reproached with the virtues of his imaginary sister, so the granddaughter of the period is reproached with the ghostly perfection of her grandmother, who never had a headache—at least according to tradition—but who, on the contrary, was a model of physical perfection. When it comes to the testimony of those who saw the grandmother in flesh—that is "another story." Abbe Robin, chaplain in Rochambeau's army during the revolution, wrote of American women in 1782: "They are tall and well-proportioned, their features are generally regular, their complexions are generally fair and without color. At 20 years of age the women have no longer the freshness of youth. At 35 or 40 they are wrinkled and decrepit."

And Chevalier Louis Felix de Beauvoir, after praising the beauty of the American women to the skies, says "At the age of 25 their form changes, and at 30 the whole of their charms have disappeared." These observers were not mere hasty travelers, but had lived here for years, and their verdict is that the women of nearly 100 years ago showed a fragile beauty and early decline which this end of the century damsel, with her athletic record and her prolonged youth, would scorn.

THE QUALLA RESERVE.

It Is the Home of an Independent Indian Tribe.

In the western part of North Carolina is a perfectly-organized republic, independent of both state and national governments. It is known as the Qualla Reserve and is the home of about 1,000 of the Cherokee Indians belonging to the eastern branch. The reserve, says Harper's Round Table, has an area of 50,000 acres, or 82 square miles, of the richest valley land of the state lying along the Ocona, Lufta and Soco creeks. The president of the little republic is elected every four years. He receives a salary of $500 a year, but when at Washington on business for the republic he gets four dollars a day extra. He is called chief, but none but a Cherokee of more than 35 years is eligible for the chieftainship. When he is absent his duties are performed by an assistant chief, whose salary is $250 a year. The chief has a cabinet of three secretaries and the congress comprises two delegates from every 190 members of the tribe. All Cherokee males of 16 and all white males who have Indian wives have the right to vote. BANK CLERK BUNCOED.

Gave Two Dollars to Be Accused of Bicycle Stealing.

A rather clever trick was played on a bank clerk the other day in Paris. A cyclist accosted him outside a store and begged him to look after his bicycle while he went in to buy something. The clerk consented, and the stranger was about to go in when he hesitated and said that as the other was a stranger to him he thought it would be well if he gave him ten francs as a guarantee of his honesty. The unsuspecting clerk handed him the sum at once, and the stranger, after promising to stand him a drink when he returned, left him. After the clerk had waited about half an hour another cyclist came up, and, seizing him by the throat, called him a thief. Both were arrested, and at the station it was learned that the second cyclist was the real owner of the machine, which had been stolen from him a few moments before it had been intrusted to the clerk.

QUELLS A RIOT.

New Use to Which a Searchlight Was Recently Put.

The electric searchlight was used recently to put down a riot in Lancashire, England. A manufacturer, whose men had struck, was determined to keep his mill going, and he promptly secured new hands and set them to work. At the same time he fixed a searchlight on the factory building, to prevent the strikers from setting fire to the sheds erected for the new hands. During the continuance of the strike this light was used nightly, in conjunction with the police established in the works, to scour the country and to illuminate the parts where pickets were placed. It was found so effective that a large number of temporary police were dispensed with.

A Queer Deposit.

Julius Howe has a peculiar deposit on his farm in East Brookfield, Mass. It covers about ten acres and lies at the bottom of a ravine in a bog. It is about 1½ feet thick and is 12 inches below the surface. It has been analyzed and found to consist of the petrified shells or bodies of minute flies or beetles. Upon being burned it crumbles into a white powder, valuable for scouring metal.

Old English Coins.

Gold coins, says the Chicago Chronicle, were introduced in England by Edward III. in six-shilling pieces, nearly equal in size to the modern sovereign. Nobles followed at six shillings eight pence, and thence the lawyer's fee; afterward there were quarter and half nobles. Edward IV. coined angels, with a figure of Michael and the dragon.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and, being an every day occurrence, is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical Co., Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion, strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

HYPNOTIZED AND BURIED.

Morbid Londoners Are Witnesses of a Most Revolting Spectacle.

Morbid sentiment has apparently reached its height in England in a recent hypnotic exhibition at the Royal aquarium, at which the subject was literally buried alive and allowed to remain so for six days, declares the New York World. The hypnotized man was sealed up in a stout casket, and, in the presence of the spectators, lowered into a grave nine feet deep.

The lid of the casket was furnished with an aperture, and this connected with the shaft which led to the surface, making respiration possible and also enabling spectators to view the face of the buried man.

At least seven feet of earth were shoveled on top of the coffin and for the period of six days it was not disturbed.

On the seventh day the casket was dug up in the presence of a large crowd. The man when awakened was apparently none the worse for his experience.

The London Lancet, which prints the account of the distressing spectacle, comments on it, saying:

"It is difficult to imagine a more revolting experiment than this. Even granting that these trances have any use whatever—which we ourselves fail to admit—there can be no possible excuse for making them more horrible than they already are by burying the man.

"Any experiment it was desired to perform could have been done equally well by sealing the man up in the box without going through the details of burying him and digging him up again. Moreover, under such circumstances, it is impossible to give him aid quickly should he need it, and, although accidents may be rare in hypnotism, their possibility is by no means to be neglected."

INSULT TO INJURY.

Rejected Lover Was Afraid It Was to Be Added.

"I prize your friendship very highly, Mr. Spoonamore," the young woman said, with profound compassion in her manner, according to Titbits, "but I have examined my own heart and it grieves me to have to say that any closer tie between us is impossible. It can never be. If you could know the pain it causes me to—"

"The pain it causes you!" he echoed. "What do you know of pain, Miss McGinnis? Listen! Asleep or awake, for five long weeks your image has been constantly before me. You have occupied all my thoughts, filled my heart and destroyed my appetite! I have ceased to take interest in the ordinary affairs of life. Devotion like mine would move the heart of a cast-iron statue; it excites only your pity. And you tell me that 'it can never be!' Friends!" he exclaimed with increasing bitterness. "Friends! Will friendship restore to his normal condition a wretched being whose flesh has wasted away till even his washerwoman doesn't know him?"

"I am sorry Mr. Spoonamore," responded the young woman, gently, her fingers straying in a mechanical way over the piano, "but it is all I can offer you. And if—"

"Maud McGinnis!" he gasped, a wild light dilating his eyes, "I—I can bear the pain of your refusal, but do not, do not add insult to injury; do not spurn me from your presence to the tune of 'Get Your Hair Cut.'"

TOO MUCH SLANG.

A German Uses an Unfortunate Idiom in His English.

A countryman of Goethe gives an instance of the difficulty a foreigner has with the English language. He was invited out to dinner soon after his arrival in England and was desirous of saying something in a very pleasant way, and made use of the following expression: "Will you have the blooming kindness to," etc. He used it in the sense that the word "blooming" is used in German as being something very charming and beautiful, little knowing what havoc slang has played with the word in England. He was absolutely at a loss to understand why everybody was so utterly horrified at what he thought was an extremely nice expression.

NEW IDEA.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

BRAZIL'S BLACK DIAMONDS.

More Sent to South Africa Than Any Other Place.

Although the greatest diamond mines in the world are in South Africa, Brazil exports more diamonds to that part than anywhere else on earth, says a London paper. The explanation is easy. They are black diamonds, and not of the kind used for jewelry. The place of their greatest utility is underground in mines. South Africa does not produce them, but it could not well get along without them.

Black diamond is the hardest substance known. Its utility has only been realized for about 20 years, and improvements are constantly being made in it. The rough stones are taken and split by machinery in a way that was unknown until recently. The split must follow the grain. If it does not the stone will be wasted. Each stone is split into cubes of different sizes. The cubes are then welded into mining drills if they are to be used for boring. The steel is cast about the diamond so that it cannot get loose. In the same way nearly all diamond saws are made. Every tooth is a black-diamond cube. It is fastened on when the steel portion of the instrument is in a molten state.

The attempt to make these stones artificially has proven a failure in every instance. The cost is greater than the market price of the Brazilian diamond.

Black diamonds weigh ordinarily less than 100 carats, ranging all the way down to half a carat. The largest in existence was found only a short time ago, its weight being 320 carats. The diamond was sold to a museum for £8,000.

WAYS OF AUTHORS.

Some Writers Have Been Very Industrious and Painstaking.

Industry and perseverence, "an infinite capacity for taking pains," if they are not indeed genius itself, as has paradoxically been said, form at least the indispensable accompaniments to it. Mr. Rider Haggard declares that he writes his books simply by keeping at work on them. And the industry of Mr. Rudyard Kipling may be measured by the fact that he is said to have written "The Record of Badalia Herodsfoot," seven times over, and then to have made considerable corrections on the proofs. The late Prof. Huxley was another writer whose industry in perfecting his literary expression, was only rivaled by his genius.

Strikingly contrasted with this necessity for industry, says Chambers' Journal, have been the personal inclinations of some conspicuous writers. Thackeray confessed that his besetting sin was laziness; he could never write, he said, till the printer's devil was at his door. The story, again, is told of Dickens, how once in a stationer's shop he was startled by hearing a lady at the counter inquire whether the next number of a certain novel, then appearing in monthly parts, were out yet. Little did the customer guess that the next part of the story was not yet in existence, and that the gentleman at her elbow, in fact, stood there for the purpose of buying the paper upon which he intended to go home and write the chapter asked for.

Sowing Bacteria in the Soil.

Herr Notbe, a German scientist, is said to have discovered a means of cultivating the nitrogen absorbing bacteria which are the cause of the assimilation by leguminous plants to the atmospheric nitrogen, and he believes that the productiveness of certain soils can be increased by sowing these bacteria. As the experiment would cost the farmer $250 an acre, he is not likely to try it on an extensive scale.

Blights Matrimonial Prospects.

In the reign of Louis XV. a solemn edict was passed in France to the following effect: "Whosoever, by means of red and white paint, perfumes, essences, artificial teeth, false hair, cotton wool, iron corsets, hoops, shoes with high heels, or false hips, should seek to induce into the bonds of marriage any male subject of his majesty shall be prosecuted for witchcraft and declared incapable of matrimony."

A Light Outfit.

A cold draught of air rushed into the room.

"Bridget," called the mistress, sharply, "who left that outside door open!"

"Please, mum, it was the plumber, just goin' away," replied the girl.

"Well," retorted the mistress, "didn't he have any manners?"

"No, mum," answered Bridget, with a hired girl's right adherence to truth; "he didn't have nuthin' but jist his little gasoline shtove."—Chicago News.

RAMPANT SNOBBERY.

Worship of Titles in England as Viewed by an Englishman.

What is there in the Anglo-Saxon nature that makes Anglo-Saxon the prize snobs of the world? Other races have their weaknesses, but this weakness they do not share with us. We sneer at foreign titles, yet in no country are titles so openly sold. We look with lofty disdain at some Italian or German count, whose ancestors have been counts for unnumbered generations. Yet we grovel before any loan monger or brewer who has bought a peerage, as though he were little less than an archangel. The latest development of this craze has been the eagerness which towns are showing to secure a nobleman for their mayor. I always felt a contempt for the London county council, since it elected a peer as its chairman, entirely unconnected with the metropolis, and utterly unversed in municipal matters. This was the work of men calling themselves radicals! And now various towns are groveling at the feet of some peer resident in its neighborhood imploring his lordship to do it the honor of allowing himself to be nominated its mayor. Why? Simply and solely because he is a lord, for were he a neighboring Jones it would occur to no one to press the post on him. Municipalities ought to consist of men, not only townsmen, but men who have shown themselves useful townsmen, and if one man more than another ought to be a permanent resident in a town, it is its mayor. In Italy, during the middle ages, a town used to invite some baron to be its patron. This was because he was a man of war and commanded men of war, and, therefore, could defend the burghers against their enemies. But barons are not needed in England to defend towns against hostile raids, and to select a nobleman as a decorative chief magistrate of a town is the very climax of rampant snobbery.—London Truth.

An Indian Legend.

The red men of the west have many curious legends concerning nature's marvels, none more weird than that concerning Rock lake, Washington. Since time out of memory the Indians of that vicinity have believed the lake to be the abode of a sea monster, which never grows old, and whose chief diet is Indian flesh. According to the legend, no Indian ever entered its waters and returned alive, no matter whether the rash act was committed by approaching its margin for a drink, for a swim, or for a canoe ride. So thoroughly is this belief spread among the Indians of the northwest that each and every one would prefer death to touching its waters.

Dusky Politeness.

A story of the colored man's fondness for good words is furnished by the New York Tribune. It is well up to date, and is about a venerable Philadelphia butler:

He was helping a visitor to put on her walking jacket the other day, and seeing her struggling to push in her rebellious big sleeves, he said, in his most respectful manner:

"P'r'aps you will hab de goodness to allow me to suppress dem puffs, madam."

SENATOR JONES' LUCK.

Unexpected Find of a Match in a Nevada Canyon.

Senator Jones, of Nevada, according to the Rochester Times, told the following story of the finding of a match on a gold-hunting trip in early days to a Washington reporter:

"We set out one day to go up a great canyon," says the senator, "and we found it most fatiguing, for there was no road. Six miles of travel in the canyon was equal to 25 on the level. One of my deputies was with me. At noon we had gone about half our journey, and we stopped to rest. I was very fond of smoking and pulled out my pipe, intending to take a smoke. I loaded up and then reached for a match. There was not one in my pocket. My deputy was not a smoker, and he did not carry matches. I was almost dying for a smoke. As I was looking around almost despairingly I saw a match lying on the ground right beside a little stream that ran through the canyon. I was almost frightened at the sight of it in such an out-of-the-way place. I picked it up, saying to myself: 'Of course, it won't light. It has been lying in the wet sand a long time, and I can't expect it to light.' But it did light, and I had my smoke. I never knew a piece of luck to beat that. It is not the most important in my life in which good fortune has stood by me, but it is one of the strangest."

Named After Royalty.

According to the invariable custom of the duke of Richmond's family it is prescribed that the eldest son and the eldest son of the eldest son shall be named after King Charles II., to whom they owe so much. The same principle is preserved in Lord Salisbury's family, where the eldest sons are named James, after James I., who bestowed the earldom of Salisbury and viscounty of Cranborne on the original founder of the house.

The Scottish Monarchy.

Malcom, the first king of Scotland, who lived in the eleventh century, was put to death by Macbeth, perhaps not exactly as described by Shakespeare, but at all events the plot of the great dramatist's play is strictly true to history. The Scottish monarchy is of much antiquity, Malcom having been the 58th reigning sovereign after Fergus I., founder of the kingdom.

Suez Canal Profits.

The Suez canal represents at present a clear profit income of over £1,600,000 a year, and this, too, means a saving to the commerce between east and west of over £2,000,000 a year. Its political and military value is somewhat problematical, since the sinking of a single ship or dredger would render it impassible.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 6, 1896.

If a New York man is to be McKinley's running mate what's the matter with Col. Thomas W. Bradley?

The Press tries to apologize for Bradley's break from Morton by saying in effect that he is as good a Morton man, to-day, as he was when he was elected a delegate, and was never much of a Morton man anyway. As a thick and thin machine organ the esteemed Press was in duty bound to jump on Col. Bradley and denounce his "treachery." That it should seek to palliate and excuse the Bradley bolt begets the suspicion that it is weakening in its allegiance to its "Uncle Levi" and does not love him as it did before he was out of the presidential race.

The knifing of Morton by knife-maker Bradley recalls the fact that this Congressional district has often been a difficult one for bosses to handle in Republican conventions, and that they have not been sure of it even after they thought they had it double riveted and copper-fastened. Tom Platt called attention, yesterday, to Col. Bradley's support of Harrison in '92, in spite of pledges to the contrary, and older politicians will remember the action of the late M. D. Stivers in 1880, who, in spite of the State convention's ironclad instructions for Grant, joined the Half-Breed bolt organized by Senator Robertson, of Westchester, which broke the back of the third term movement for Grant and made possible the nomination of Garfield.

The Walden knife factory is always the tail to Tom Bradley's political kite. He has made politics profitable as an adjunct to his business. He has had a voice in fixing the cutlery schedule in every tariff measure that Republican Congressmen have drafted in the last twenty years and has seen to it that he and his fellow manufacturers were so amply protected against the labor of the pauper knife makers of Europe that they were able to import those pauper knife makers to do the work that ought to have been given to American artisans. Thrift has always followed Col. Bradley's fawning and his flop to McKinley, made when the nomination of that candidate seems assured, begets the suspicion that it is made with the hope and expectation, and perhaps the assurance, that he is to have a place on the list of preferred claimants in the division of spoils and favors.

The Strike of Goshen Granite Cutters Quickly Ended.

The strike of the cutters at the works of the Empire State Granite Co, in Goshen, which began Monday noon is ended, the men having resumed work this morning. The strike was an utterly causeless one, and was precipitated, after the manager, B J. Mallon, had waived the company's rule in regard to three days' notice by an employe, who desired to quit, because the bookkeeper was at Pine Island and the employe's account could not be made up at once. The president of the local union, who ordered the strike, was not permitted to return to work.

THE BUSHVILLE MURDERS RECALLED

A Memorandum Book in a Package "spouted" at Billy Steele's Saloon That Contains Entries Relative to the Crime—Apparently Made by an Amateur Detective.

For the past year or more a package has been resting on the ice box in Mr. Wm. Steele's saloon, on Cottage street. In lead pencil written upon the paper was this: "George Maison, to be called for."

The man who left the package came to Mr. Steele's something more than a year ago and appeared to be very flush and spent his money freely. About a week later he came back, was sober and apparently in a despondent mood. He said he was hard up and wanted a dollar to take him to his home in Pennsylvania and proffered his bundle as security.

The bundle was thrown upon the ice box, as stated, and remained there until yesterday, when Mr. and Mrs. Steele opened it. It contained several articles of clothing, two wierd and lurid detective stories and a memorandum book in which were several newspaper clippings, among them being an illustration from the Police Gazette of the Bushville double murder in which Jacob Moore and Jane Slack were butchered,

In the memorandum book was written upon one page the following:

"J. Bill, Yonkers, murdered Jacob Moore Feb. 22, 1894."

On another page appears the following:

"First party was on inside and second party came as the enemy knelt at the door. When woman came to open the door he shot at Jacob, then struck him with a stick of wood. The first party then hit Jane Slack with the shovel. The third party was on guard, and threw three stones on the house as a team was approaching.

"On Wednesday night, the 21st day of February, about a mile north or west met by Mr. —— with three in a slay. The same rig was seen at 11 p. m. on the turnpike, south of Chas Gregory's with two in a slay Tried to turn around in the road so as not to meet Joe. It went from there to Monticello."

All of which reads like the fool entry of an amateur detective who had been trying to play the role of "Old Sleuth."

One Way of Circumventing the Bug Slaying Police.

A young man in this city, who owns a white dog that objects to being muzzled, has painted a muzzle on the dog's nose. The dog does not mind the painted muzzle, the police will have to put on spectacles to detect the difference, and the dog's owner goes out on his back stoop morning, noon and night and hugs himself in delight at his cleverness.

Martha Whittaker Arraigned.

Mrs. Martha Whittaker was arrested on a warrant issued by Coroner Harding charging her with having caused the death of her mother, Mrs. Frances Snyder. She was arraigned before Justice Conkling and pleaded not guilty and demanded a hearing, which was postponed until to-day to secure the attendance of witnesses.

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abscesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or whenever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering.

"I had a dreadful carbuncle abscess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abscess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine." MRS. ANNA PETERSON, Latimer, Kansas.

"Our own make" represents our claim that such preparations are of highest merit—best of their kind - excelled by none! To the public it is a guarantee of quality our own reputation is behind it!

"Our own make" means also for our customers a better quality and a lower price for goods we must otherwise purchase at a higher price for an inferior quality.

The Police Begin the Slaughter of Dogs.

The police have begun their crusade against unmuzzled dogs and as a result the streets are comparatively free from roaming yelpers. Officer Wilson despatched a ferocious looking bull dog, on Prospect avenue, yesterday, with one shot from his trusty gun and Captain Gould sent a "plain dog" to the happy hunting grounds, on Orchard street, this morning.

Many people, not caring to purchase muzzles for their dogs, have sent them to friends in the country for safe keeping.

A Theatre Party.

The following members of the Z K. Club formed a theatre party that went to New York, this morning, expecting to be gone a couple days: Mesdames Bastian, Caley, Frank, Billings, Gunther, Schubert, Lowe.

She was born in Andes, Delaware county, and resided there until the death of her husband, Frank Wilson, in March last.

About two weeks ago she was attacked with spinal trouble which finally caused her death. She was a great sufferer, but displayed wonderful patience and fortitude.

She is survived by three daughters and one son: Mrs. Richard Williams, of this city; Mrs. Joseph Pereon, of Oscawana, N. Y.; Mrs. David W. Benedict, of Walton, and Mr. Grant L. Wilson, of the O. and W., at whose home she died.

She was a devout christian and a member of the M. E. Church, at Andes.

The remains will be taken to Walton on O. and W. train 1, Thursday, and the funeral will be held there at 3:30 p m.

Wilbur C. Fredericks.

Wilbur C. Fredericks, youngest son of Supervisor George W. Fredericks, of Chester, died at his home in that village, last night, after an illness of four days, aged about nineteen years

Young Fredericks had been employed in the Chester Bank, and last winter took a course in Eastman's Business College, in Poughkeepsie, from which he graduated on Friday last. He returned home on that day and expected to resume his duties in the bank on Monday.

He was taken suddenly ill, Friday night, with an affection of the brain, which finally developed into spinal meningitis. He was reported somewhat better yesterday morning, but towards evening he sank rapidly until death ended his sufferings.

He was a particularly bright young man, and won the esteem of every one with whom he came in contact.

He is survived by his parents and three elder brothers, George W., Jr., Charles H. and Harry. He was a nephew of Mrs. L. G. Wilson, of this city. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

LAST MESSAGE TO HER HUSBAND

George Rickles Receives a Letter From His Eloping Wife—Mailed at Gosh'n Monday.

George Rickles, whose wife eloped, Monday, with Frank McCloud received, yesterday, the following letter which had been mailed at Goshen, Monday afternoon:

GEORGE:—You want the baby so bad you can have it. You will find it at No. 1 Beattie avenue. I hope you will take better care of it than you did of me. You are free to do as you wish. only not bother me and I wont you. Good by forever.

MARTHA BREWSTER.

This letter and the other letters that have been published are in McCloud's handwriting, from which it would seem that not content with inducing the woman to elope with him, he made it his business to "burn her bridges behind her."

Nothing has been learned as to the whereabouts of the eloping couple.

HER NIGHT FOR LOSING THINGS.

A Lady Who Had a streak Of Bad Luck Last Night.

A lady, who in company with two or three other ladies attended the performance at the Casino, last night, after walking half way to her home in the suburbs, discovered that she had lost her pocketbook which contained a considerable sum of money.

She returned alone to the Casino and was delighted to find the pocketbook under the seat she had occupied during the evening. She expected to ride home in a car, but the last car had gone and she started to walk home alone, but she had the good luck to meet a gentleman friend, who walked home with her. Her bad luck, however, was not yet over for before bidding her escort good night, she discovered that on the homeward trip she had lost a very valuable lace handkerchief.

Thumb and Forefinger Amputated.

Michael O'Brien, the Bloomingburgh man, who was brought to Thrall Hospital, yesterday afternoon, with his right hand shattered by the explosion of a gun, had his wounds dressed by Drs. Hulett and Mills. The thumb was blown off and it was necessary to amputate the forefinger and a portion of the hand. The doctors are trying to save the remainder of the hand, but have but little hope of being able to do so and fear that amputation of the whole member will be necessary. All the fingers were dislocated by the shock of the explosion.

Drowned in a Trout Stream.

George Hartwood, thirty-three years old, was drowned, Monday, in a trout stream near Lackawaxen, in which he was fishing. It is supposed that he was taken with a fit, to which he was subject, and fell forward with his face in the water. He was unmarried and lived with his father in Lackawaxen.

A SLICK SWINDLER.

Sold Iron Kettles and Frying Pans to Be Delivered by Mail.

About ten days ago a very slick young man was in this city selling galvanized iron kettles with asbestos bottoms, the price of the kettles being eighty-five cents. Nobody knows whether the kettles were good or the price reasonable or not for he had but one and on this he took orders for several, in most instances receiving the cash on his promise to deliver them last Saturday.

The slick young man had also a frying pan which he sold at "15 cents to pay postage" to those who purchased kettles at eighty-five cents and these were supposed to arrive Monday.

It never occurred to many ladies about town that frying pans were rarely sent through the mails, nor that it was out of the usual order of business to pay for goods until they were delivered unless the salesman was known to be reliable.

So far as we have been able to learn no one knows the name or address of the vendor of kettles and frying pans, and thus far those who purchased are waiting impatiently for the arrival of their goods.

It would be well for newspapers to pass this fellow along.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

Mr. M. B. Wolf Attacked By a Snarling Little Terrier.

Mr. Moses B. Wolf was bitten in the calf of the leg by a little dog belonging to Mrs. Matthews, last evening. He was walking hurriedly in front of Mrs. Matthews' residence on South street when the dog ran out and seized him by the leg and sank its teeth deep in o the flesh.

Mr. Wolf has none of the superstitious notion that to kill the dog will prevent hydrophobia in his own case and has no fear of such a result anyway, but he is deliberating in his own mind whether or not his duty to others does not require him to insist upon the dog being killed.

Eloped With the Whole Family.

Wappingers Falls had a very strange elopement, last week, a wife having abandoned her husband and young babe and in company with her sister-in law gone off with a young man who had captivated them both. A few days' experience of life with two women was enough for the young man and he abandoned the wife and clove to the sister-in-law, but was considerate enough to send word to the husband where the erring wife could be found.

Invited to a Fourth of July Parade in Schenectady.

Captain McIntyre has received an invitation for the 24th Separate Company to be the guests of the 36 h Separate Company, of Schenectady, and participate in a grand old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration at that place.

As the company goes to camp, July 18th, it is not likely that the invitation will be accepted.

Wreck on the O. and W.'s Scranton Branch

The O. and W. had a wreck on the Scranton branch, at 3:30 o'clock this morning. Seventeen loaded coal cars on train No. 243 were derailed, and some of them were badly damaged. The wreck was caused by a broken wheel. None of the train crew was injured.

Wall-Eyed Pike for the Wallkill.

Mr. Lewis Roth, to-day, received a telegram from Constantia, Oswego county, directing him to meet the O. and W. train at Wickham avenue, at 4:30, to get the 50,000 young wall-eyed pike which he had been awarded to stock the Wallkill River. The fish will be placed in the river this evening.

A Chance to Get a Bicycle.

A Crescent bicycle, style of 1896, which will be disposed of at the Parada and Spielkartenfest, is on exhibition in the window of Van Duzer & Smith. If the wheel is won by a lady the Millspaugh Hardware Co., agents for the Crescent, will exchange it for a ladies' wheel and if by a man or boy for one of the proper size.

Chauncey Olcot's Rise in the World.

A Binghamton gentleman, who was in this city, last night, and saw the packed house that greeted Chauncey Olcott at the Casino, said to a friend: "That man has had a rapid rise in the world. I knew him when he was the bootblack and all around man at the Osborne House in Hornellsville. He's made of good stuff or he would not be where he is to-day"

It is said that Mr. Olcott is a native of Newburgh.

Made a Widow By a Spanish Bullet.

Four months ago Joseph Petrikovsky, a Russian who had become an American citizen but was employed as a special reporter for the Russian Government, and Miss Georgia Briard, of Milford, Pa., were married. Not long afterward the husband was ordered to Cuba. A few days ago she received a letter from a newspaper correspondent which stated that her husband was shot in battle at Pinar del Rio.

An Onion Speculation.

Mr. Charles Meyers, of Turners, sent 218 barrels of onions to a New York commission merchant, some days ago, and when the returns were remitted to him he found that he had just enough to pay freight and commission bills and get a "schooner."

Scrofulous Sores.

"For 17 years I have been troubled with scrofulous humor and sores all over my body. I grew weaker and lost my appetite I was advised to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and have taken three bottles and am almost entirely cured. I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from this terrible disease." James W. Shelton, Roseton, N. Y.

GEN. FITZHUGH LEE.

Public Career of the Newly-Made Consul-General to Cuba.

Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, the newly appointed consul general to Cuba, will not be unfamiliar with the scenes of war that await him at his post. He has seen service. He is a nephew of Gen. Robert E. Lee, and served under the great confederate leader during the war of the rebellion. He was born in 1835 at Clermont, Fairfax county, Va., and was graduated from the military academy in 1856. Commissioned as lieutenant in the Second cavalry he went to the frontier, was severely wounded by the Indians and was recalled to be instructor of cavalry at West Point. When the war came Lieut. Lee resigned his commission and joined the confederate cause. At first he did staff duty and was adjutant general of Ewell's brigade. In September, 1861, he was made lieutenant colonel of the First Virginia cavalry and soon afterward was promoted to be colonel. He served in all the campaigns of the army of northern Virginia. In 1862 Lee was made a brigadier general and a major general in 1863. At Winchester, in 1864, he was disabled by a severe wound, which kept him from duty for several months. In 1865 he was placed in command of the whole cavalry corps of the army of northern Virginia and a month later surrendered to Gen. Meade at Farmville and retired to his Virginia home. In 1885 he was elected governor of Virginia. Gen. Lee will go to Cuba with absolute liberty to travel about wherever he pleases unobstructed and unrestricted by the Spaniards. Should the president desire any information concerning the state of affairs in Cuba the new consul general will be in a splendid position to gather it. It is known that Gen. Lee, while being a fair man, warmly sympathizes with the insurgents.

GEN. FITZHUGH LEE.

RESCUE, THE DOG HERO.

He Led the Greeley Relief Expedition Over the Arctic Ice Hills.

There has recently died in Carlisle, Pa., the dog hero Rescue, who led the Greeley relief expedition over the ice hills of the frigid north. He was a huge, shaggy fellow and so tender-hearted that all the children loved him. He was born in Newfoundland and was part Newfoundland and part collie. The explorers chose him for the dangerous journey because of his size and bravery.

Rescue was aboard the ill-fated Proteus, which was crushed in the ice before the Greeley party was rescued. He was aboard the Bear that was fitted out after the news of the failure of the Proteus, and when the Bear made a landing and the journey was finished with dogs and sledges Rescue led the pack. Says one who knew Rescue well:

"His sagacity and mettle proved invaluable. His scent was keen, and through the long and tiresome drives his strength never flagged. When the other dogs were almost dropping in their tracks with the fatigue of drawing the heavy sledge Rescue's tireless trot and good spirits seemed to inspire them."

Rescue was one of the first to see the distress flag of the Greeley party and his joyful bark carried gladness to the hearts of the starving explorers. Seven men were found. One of them was in such terrible condition that his fingers snapped off as though they were pipe stems. The only nourishment the rescuers could permit them to take was a few drops of whisky. For several days prior to the rescue Greeley and his men had subsisted upon soup by boiling an old boot in a kettle of water.

Upon returning from the north Lieut. Colwell took the dog to Washington, where he was greatly petted. Many attempts were made to purchase him, but Lieut. Colwell would not sell him. Rescue hated cats and they were not safe anywhere around him. The portrait of the noble fellow is from the New York Press.

Sticky Fly Paper Factories.

The world's supply of sticky fly paper comes from one factory in Grand Rapids, Mich. There are three or four other small factories scattered about the country, but none of them makes enough to cut much of a figure in the market. The single factory in that city is a concern employing 400 to 600 hands all the year round, and its product is shipped to every land.

Tiny Testament and Bible.

A "midget" Testament, three-quarters of an inch long and half an inch wide, weighing only 26 grains, and a "mite" of a Bible, 1¾ inches high by 1¼ wide, containing 936 pages and weighing 180 grains, have just been published by a Glasgow firm. They are said to be the smallest Bible and Testament in the world.

Old Fashioned —compound cathartic pills, "blue pills," calomel or other mercurial preparations, should not be used in these days of enlightened medical science, when it is so easy to get a purely vegetable pill in concentrated form, sugar-coated, in glass vials, at any store where medicines are kept.

Dr. Pierce was first to introduce a Little Pill to the American people. Many have imitated them, but none have approached his "Pleasant Pellets" in true worth, or value, for all laxative and cathartic purposes.

Once Used, they are Always in Favor.

Assist Nature a little now and then, with a gentle, cleansing laxative, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness, pimples, blotches, eruptions, boils, constipation, piles, fistula and maladies too numerous to mention.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequaled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity, with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and indigestion.

They absolutely cure sick headache, biliousness, constipation, coated tongue, poor appetite, dyspepsia and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

A free sample of the "Pellets," (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card.

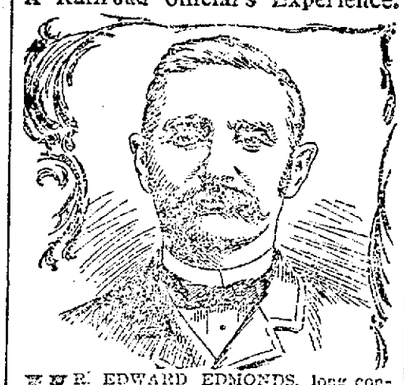
A Railroad Official's Experience.



MR. EDWARD EDMONDS, long connected with railroad construction in Nebraska, writes: "My heart troubled and pained me for 10 years. Shortness of breath was the constant and most common symptom. Intense, excruciating pain, generally followed any severe exertion. Faintness, hunger without any appetite; fluttering that made me clutch my breast, and palpitation that often staggered me as if I would fall, were frequent attacks. Again, everything would turn black if I arose from a stooping posture quickly. Sleepless nights with their prostrating unrest were numerous and I could get no rest day or night. I consulted leading physicians and tried advertised remedies. They gave me no relief. One of Dr. Miles' circulars described my case so exactly that I took Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and I am now a well man. I hope every one troubled with heart disease will try Dr. Miles' remedies. If they will write me personally, I will gladly give them full details of my experience." EDW. EDMONDS.

HUXLEY AS A LECTURER.

A Sketch of the Famous Scholar, Logician and Agnostic.

In personal conversation Huxley was full of humor and greatly enjoyed stories at his own expense. Such was the following: "In my early period as a lecturer I had very little confidence in my general powers, but one thing I prided myself upon was clearness. I was once talking of the brain before a large mixed audience, and soon began to feel that no one in the room understood me. Finally I saw the thoroughly interested face of a woman auditor and took consolation in delivering the remainder of the lecture directly to her. At the close my feeling as to her interest was confirmed when she came up and asked if she might put one question upon a single point which she had not quite understood. 'Certainly,' I replied. 'Now, professor,' she said, 'is the cerebellum inside or outside of the skull?'" A story of his about babies is also characteristic: "When a fond mother calls upon me to admire her baby I never fail to respond, and, while cooing appropriately, I take advantage of an opportunity to gently ascertain whether the soles of its feet turn in and tend to support my theory of arboreal descent."

Huxley as a teacher can never be forgotten by any of his students. He entered his lecture-room promptly as the clock was striking nine, rather quickly, and with his head bent forward "as if oppressive with its mind." He usually glanced attention to his class of about 90 and began speaking before he reached his chair. He spoke between his lips, but with perfectly clear analysis, with thorough interest, and with philosophic insight which was far above the average of his students. He used very few charts, but handled the chalk with great skill, sketching out the anatomy of an animal as if it were a transparent object. As in Darwin's face, and as in Erasmus Darwin's or Buffon's, and many other anatomists with a strong sense of form, his eyes were heavily overhung by a projecting forehead and eyebrows and seemed at times to look inward. His lips were firm and closely set, with the expression of positiveness, and the other feature which most marked him was the very heavy mass of hair falling over his forehead, which he would frequently stroke or toss back. Occasionally he would lighten up the monotony of anatomical description by a bit of humor. I remember one instance which was probably reminiscent of his famous tilt with Bishop Wilberforce at the meeting of the British association in 1860. Huxley was describing the mammalian heart, and had just distinguished between the tricuspid valve on the right side of the heart and the bicuspid valve on the left, which, you know, resembles a bishop's mitre, and hence is known as the mitral valve. He said: "It is not easy to recall on which side these respective valves are found, but I recommend this rule: you can easily remember that the mitral is on the left, because a bishop is never known to be on the right."—Prof. Henry F. Osborn, in Science.

Red Man's Medicine.

The Indian pharmacopœia comprised thoroughwort, spurge and Indian hemp, used as emetics; the bark of the horse chestnut and buttercup, used as cathartics. They were also acquainted with many poisons, most of which they used on their weapons. For asthma they employed tobacco and sassafras; for coughs, slippery elm; for dropsy, the wild gooseberry; for wounds, powdered puff balls. They treated boils with onion poultices.

IT'S ALL TALK.

Yes, But It's Middletown Talk, the Kind That Tells in Middletown.

Talk that tells.

Talk that's endorsed.

Everyday talk by people that you know.

City talk—kidney talk.

Do kidneys talk?

Well, yes, both loud and long.

You should learn the kidney language.

Backache in kidney talk means kidney ache.

Lame back means lame kidneys.

Weak back mea s weak kidneys.

A bad back is simply,

The kidneys talking trouble.

Here s Middletown talk:

It comes from South St. No. 43, the residence of Miss A. N. McLaughlin. Her statement should interest our readers, she says: "About 10 years ago I slipped off a wet door sill and fell on my back. I was so badly hurt that I was laid up for three days. Ever since then I have been bothered with a weak and aching back. It seems when I fell I injured my kidneys and in place of getting better as time went by, they grew worse in spite of all the remedies I took to get relief. Doan's Kidney Pills came to me so highly recommended that I concluded to try them and procuring a box at J. E. Mills' drug store I commenced their use. In a short time I was wonderfully relieved. That to me is a great deal after the years of suffering and if Doan's Kidney Pills help a case like mine so very much I can certainly recommend them to any woman having kidney complaint."

The aching back has no greater enemy than Doan's Kidney Pills—not injurious to the most delicate constitution. Do not act on the bowels, but direct on the kidneys. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

The general belief among doctors is that consumption itself is very rarely inherited. But the belief is becoming stronger that the tendency to consumption is very generally transmitted from parent to child. If there has been consumption in the family, each member should take special care to prepare the system against it. Live out doors; keep the body well nourished; and treat the first indication of failing health.

Washington Furniture Imitated and Offered for Sale as Real.

George Washington's desk, together with some other pieces of his furniture, is in the governor's room at the New York city hall, says the Collector, and a very well-kept, convenient looking desk it is, made of well-polished mahogany, and with lots of room for the writer's arm.

Visitors to this room are inclined to doubt the age of the desk. Enterprising furniture makers got its dimensions a year ago, and promptly flooded the country with George Washington desks. They are close reproductions, and several of them have been held in country towns as the original desk.

A dealer in antiques received a letter from a New England town last week asking what he would pay for George Washington's desk. The writer said that it was in perfect condition, and he could establish its identity by comparing it with the old pictures of George Washington's furniture.

"Probably the writer was honest in his pretense that his desk was the original," said the dealer, "but of course it is only one of the many counterfeits that have been made.

"There is hardly a historic piece of old furniture but has been counterfeited, and every week I receive letters from country people who have found one of these productions, and, believing it to be genuine, offer to sell it for a large price. Some of these reproductions only an expert can detect."

ENEMIES OF ENGLAND.

Great Britain Has Fought and Conquered Three Great Potentates.

The three greatest potentates of modern times have been England's strenuous antagonists—viz., Philip II., Louis XIV. and Napoleon. Of these three Napoleon was the most powerful, says Blackwood's Magazine. Philip the most deadly. The leaders under whom the English rallied against these world-famous monarchs were, first, Elizabeth and Drake; second, William and Marlborough; Third, Pitt and Nelson. The result of the first of these great historic duels was to overturn the foundations of Spanish empire, with its dominion over the seas, its vast colonial possessions, its claim under a papal bull to an exclusive monopoly of the new world. The result of the second was to decide which should be the residuary legatee of the deceased Spanish power, France or England; giving in the end the succession to its old world dominions to France, its trade, maritime supremacy and colonies mainly to England.

The result of the third was to shatter Napoleon's hopes of ascendancy by sea, and to force him back on European conquests, upon projects which related to the old world and not to the new. Pitt and Nelson did not disappear until that end was attained and England's part in the later wars of Napoleon was that, having, as Pitt said in almost his closing words, saved herself by her energy she saved Europe by her example and assistance.

CASHIER WASHES MONEY.

Microbes on Paper Currency Destroyed by an Ammonia Bath.

The fair metropolitan cashier has added a new factor to her growing valuation which will not prove so desirable a wife in the eyes of her employer as the honesty and efficiency which have won for her almost a monopoly in the business. It is the result of the microbe craze, says the Globe-Democrat, and is nothing less than washing all the money she handles, and charging her employer overtime, too. The discoverer of this new way to enhance her usefulness and cost is Annie Nesmyth, the money-taker of a big down-town hotel. Miss Nesmyth serves at night mostly, and, while less money comes in then than during the day, she is generally kept busy enough. The money is often very dirty and to the last degree repulsive to handle. Now, the cashier is a trained nurse "resting" from her arduous professional labors. After a sick spell from handling the soiled currency she concluded to resign. She was persuaded not to by an increase of her salary and permission to wash the money. So every night sees a soup-plate of ammonia water at her elbow, into which each note as it arrives is dropped. It gets a quick bath and then is laid out on a piece of flannel to dry as tenderly as if it were her best piece of jewelry. The water has to be changed two or three times in a night.

Won't Work There.

It is an odd fact that the telegraph lines will not work through the Hoosac tunnel. Messages have to be sent on wires strung on poles over the top of the mountains, fully nine miles, and that is the way ingoing and outcoming passenger and freight trains are heralded to the keepers of the two tunnel approaches. In order to maintain this overland mountain line a swath of woodland has to be kept clear of trees and bushes directly up the steep mountain side. There are supposed to be magnetic ores inside the mountain.

A Plan for Increasing and Improving Newburgh's Water Supply.

A committee of Newburgh's Board of Water Commissioners, appointed to devise plans for increasing and improving the city's water supply, has recommended the construction of a new reservoir on Silver Stream, 115 feet above the present reservoir, which will supply that part of the city now supplied from the high service reservoir at a cost of $6,000 for pumping. The cost of the new reservoir is estimated at $225,000.

After meals you should have simply a feeling of comfort and satisfaction. You should not feel any special indications that digestion is going on. If you do, you have indigestion, which means not-digestion This may be the beginning of so many dangerous diseases, that it is best to take it in hand at once and treat it with Shaker Digestive Cordial. For you know that indigestion makes poison, which causes pain and sickness. And that Shaker Digestive Cordial helps digestion and cures indigestion. Shaker Digestive Cordial does this by providing the digestive materials in which the sick stomach is wanting. It also tones up and strengthens the digestive organs and makes them perfectly healthy. Tois is the rationale of its method of cure, as the doctors would say. Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1 00 per bottle.

Local and Personal Notes—Difficulties of School Teaching in New Jersey—Laughter Not "Good Form."

From a Special Correspondent.

—The ladies of St. James' Guild met, on Monday afternoon, at the chapel. Reports were read by different committees and plans for future work discussed.

—Miss Hattie Denniston, who has been living in Newburgh for some months, is reported seriously ill with Bright's disease, at her home in that city.

—Teaching, under any circumstances, is apt to be rather wearing work, but teaching in a certain New Jersey town must be particularly trying to the nervous system. The town in question, according to the New York Sun, has an old school house, in whose walls many snakes took refuge during the cold weather, and are now thawing out and oozing forth from all crevices and crannies in the building, much to the consternation of both instructor and scholars. A teacher generally is pretty well occupied in "keeping an eye" upon his pupils, and it must be somewhat distracting to be obliged to look out for snakes too. Then, too, the average child wriggles enough during school hours to distract any one who has not an exceptionally calm temperament, and just fancy being obliged, in addition to this, to witness the writhing and twisting of numerous reptiles. It will be enough to drive the New Jersey teacher to intemperance, hoping that a fit of delirium tremens might prove a welcome change.

—So laughter has gone out of fashion. According to a newspaper authority it is no longer 'good form' to laugh heartily. One's amusement is only to be shown by a smile, described as "sweet and brilliant but, at the same time, languid." It would be as well, possibly, for those who do not wish to violate the laws of good breeding to practice this combination smile in private for a time before venturing to spring it upon an unprepared world, for to achieve a smile that shall be sweet, brilliant and languid all at the same time is not the work of a moment one would think, but of long and patient labor, and some of its transitory stages must savor a bit of idiocy. After everyone has perfected this wonderful smile, it may be just possible that we may miss the old-fashioned laugh which has surprised many of us out of "a fit of megrims." A world without an occasional hearty laugh would be much like a world without sunshine. G. H.

Good Trout Fishing Up the Midland.

It is said by those in a position to know that trout fishing in Sullivan and Delware county streams is better this year than in the past five years. This is due doubtless to the persistent efforts of the O. and W. officials to stock the streams.

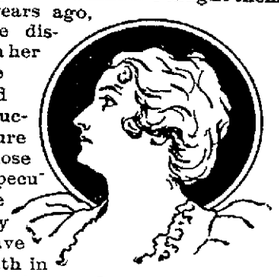
A WOMAN'S STORY.

It Should Be of Interest to Every Thinking Woman.

Women who reason well know that no male physician can understandingly treat the complaint known as "female diseases," for no man ever experienced them.

This, Lydia E. Pinkham tanght them twenty years ago, when she discovered in her Vegetable Compound the only successful cure for all those ailments peculiar to the sex. Many women have a fatal faith in their physician, and not till they can suffer no longer, will they think and act for themselves.



The following testimony is straight to the point, and represents the experience of hundreds of thousands of now grateful women: "For six years I was a great sufferer from those internal weaknesses so prevalent among our sex. After having received treatment from four physicians of our city, and finding no relief whatever, I concluded to try Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has proved a boon to me. It can truly be called a "Saviour of Women."—Mrs. B. A. PERHAM, Waynesboro, Pa.

THE CONGREGATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting of the Hudson River Association of Congregational Churches—Interesting Exercises.

The annual meeting of the Hudson River Association of Congregational Ministers and Churches began, yesterday, in the First Congregational Church, of this city. Organization was effected by the choice of Deacon D. C. Matthews, of Poughkeepsie, as Moderator, and Rev. Wm. O r Wark, of Saratoga, as Scribe Devotional services were led by Rev. F. A. Strough, of Albany.

A very lively and practical discussion upon, "Business and the Gospel," was opened by Rev George Hall, of Howells, and Rev. O M. Hardendorf, of Albany Several participated in the discussion, and Rev. Dr. Gordon, of the First Presbyterian Church, was introduced to the association, and made an interesting address upon the theme under consideration.

The evening service began with devotional exercises led by Rev Mr Neilson, of Newburgh. The choir rendered an anthem, and later Misses Marvin and Howland sang a duet The first address of the evening was given by Rev. J. Brainerd Thrall, of Albany. For reasons which he gave he changed his theme from the one published and gave a forcible presentation of "The Worth of a Soul." The Moderator of last year, Rev. C. A. Aiden, of Schenectady, then gave an address upon "The Mastership of the Incarnation." He held the close attention of his audience for an hour to the great truths suggested by his subject.
